Now I know I'm in Austria – there are men at breakfast wearing Lederhosen. — with Bruce Ryan at Linz, Österreich.

Eleanor Emberson I think vegans wear PVC-hosen, Avril – and I can't bear to think of that in this heat! Would have enjoyed the view more, Al, if any of the wearers had had cyclist thighs.

I can't decide which is the best part of finishing a long, hot day of cycling: getting off the saddle, showering or having a cold beer. They're all great. Today we did 77 miles along the Danube, covering in one day what we did in two days last year. It was hot and I was a bit tired from yesterday, so it felt harder than it should have – but the well-groomed Austrian countryside is lovely and this is cyclist territory with everything organised accordingly. We are staying at the Hotel zur Post right in the heart of the old town of Melk, underneath the famous monastery. Our bikes are tucked up for the night in the bike garage next to the wine cellar. We have another 70+ miles to Vienna tomorrow (Google maps lied!) so hope the legs hold up. — 😊 feeling tired with Bruce Ryan at Melk, Niederösterreich.
